

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

I want to understand better how to write user stories and make them more specific and avoid making them too technical. I would also like to learn how to break down those user stories in smaller tasks to make them more manageable to finish.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

Since I have the main contact with our stakeholder, I can help my team to make decisions on the design and functionality of the product.

- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

We haven't really started with the project yet, so we didn't use scrum much. However, we had an exercise on minetest where we used scrum, my contribution was mainly transporting sand to the group and planting two flowers. :)

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I've been active in our team meeting, and helped to come up with the design and product description. I also made sure that all the members showed up on the meeting, since it was a little bit early.

Another thing I did was talking to the stakeholder, and delivering the information to the team. But there are still some things we need to double check and understand.
