

Individual Reflection

Week 6 Albin Lönnfält

This week we made sure that a user can make a booking in the calendar. Since I this week worked more with backend, I learned a lot about Json databases. To learn even more about Json backed would be fun and beneficial for the project.

To make sure I can help my teammate I should Keep assisting others in areas where I have more knowledge and make myself available for help. I should also make sure that everyone in the group know my experience so when they get stuck know that I can help them.

I created user stories and created task based on them. I of course took part of getting the tasks and user stories done. I also helped out with the team reflection as every week.